SPEECH OF HON. GEO. H. WILLIAMS

At Wieting Hall, Syracuse, New York, October 24, 1866

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Twenty-two eventful years have passed away since I left this city with little but the ardor of inexperienced youth, and took my way toward the land of the setting sun. And now the electric chain that binds every man to the home of his boyhood—rolled in that lengthens but never breaks by distance—has brought me back to the starting place, not so much at this time to revive the associations of early life as to speak for a cause common to the whole country and to advocate the claims of a party that, stretching itself from ocean to ocean, has stood like an unbroken phalanx with its breast to the storm of civil war and saved by its bayonets what it now seeks to maintain by its ballots—the honor, the power, and the life of this nation. [Applause.] Organized warfare in this country over those questions affecting the integrity of the Union has ceased, and by the return of peace those issues that were submitted to the arbitrament of battle have been transferred to the field of political disputation. Men may say what they please about the rights of States or other conventional rights, but the same issue in substance and effect is involved in this political canvass that was pending when Grant confronted Lee around the ramparts of Richmond, and that is this: Shall the loyal or disloyal sentiment of this country control and determine its future destiny? Everybody knows that we have had a great war in these United States, but people differ in opinion as to the nature of that war. Some regard it as a mere collision of physical forces, a sort of prize fight in which men were enabled to display their endurance and skill, while others regard it as a convulsion proceeding from political and moral causes, and that ought in the nature of things to produce political and moral effects. People employ different modes at different times to enforce their opinions. Rebels in 1861 resorted to arms to enforce theirs, but were defeated, and now because circumstances require it they resort to the more peaceful but perhaps not less effective means of the ballot to carry out their views and accomplish their purposes.

Every man's own experience will teach him that mere physical compulsion will not change the opinions of the human mind or the convictions of the human heart. History is replete with examples to show that the sword, the faggot and the rack have been employed in vain to force men into an abandonment of their political and religious views and opinions. And so obvious has this truth become that it has passed into a familiar adage that—

> A man convinced against his will
> Is of the same opinion still.

Thirty years and more the insurgents of the late war were industriously taught that the secession of a State was a constitutional right and that disunion was a legitimate remedy for supposed national grievances. It is reasonable to suppose that men as thoroughly educated as they were into these convictions have been changed by the application of that physical force which in the judgment of the Government was necessary to suppress the rebellion? May it not be said of them that they were convinced against their will? Independent of this argument, I ask you to look at the dreary history of the rebel States since the conflict of arms ceased, and tell me where is the evidence to be found that they have changed their feelings, opinions or even their purposes, that they are not of "the same opinion still." I know that they admit war to be unavailing as a means, but you will remember that Alexander H. Stephens swore before the reconstruction committee that they still believed in the right of secession. I say what I suppose will not be contested, that the men whose claims and rights are now in question were in 1861, 1862, 1863 and 1864, the enemies of this Government. Did they not evince that hostility in every possible way? Did they not organize governments in defiance of the Constitution and laws of the United States? Did they not marshal mighty armies to kill and destroy the friends of the Government? Did they not fit out piratical ships to sweep the national commerce from the ocean? Did they not invite foreign powers to interfere for the destruction of our national existence? Did they not endeavor to burn our towns and cities? Did they not seek by importation of infected clothing to spread pestilence, sorrow, and death among our families and homes? Did they not with every circumstance of barbarity starve to death tens of thousands of Union prisoners in the prison pens of the South? And finally, did they not assassinate Abraham Lincoln and crown this pyramid of wickedness and crime with that most foul and bloody murder? Assuming that they were enemies, then I say that they ought to furnish satisfactory evidence that they have ceased to be such enemies and have become the friends of the Government before they can rightfully claim to be trusted and treated as its friends. Scripture furnishes us with an illustration of real repentance, for it is recorded that the prodigal son, when he became conscious of the wickedness he had committed, said, "I will arise and go unto my father, and will say to him, father, I have sinned against Heaven and in thy sight and am no more worthy to be called thy son; make me as one of thine hired servants." Do these prodigals of the South who have not only wasted their substance, but attempted to destroy the temple of their fathers, come back with any of the spirit that characterized the prodigal in the parable? Do they not on the contrary come back with words of insolence and defiance, demanding as a right not only a pardon, but a premium for their great and inexcusable crimes? Where, I ask again, is the evidence that they are sincerely sorry for what they have done and mean hereafter to do better?

Do you find it in their political proceedings under Johnson's plan of reconstruction? Do you find it in the elections that have taken place there? Do you find it in the late proceedings of the Legislature of Texas, where, after resolving that they would not elect a man who could take the oath of office prescribed by Congress, proceeded to choose a rebel general and the president of a secession convention to the United States Senate? Do you find it in the election of rebel generals and members of the confederate government as Governors, Senators and Representatives, or in the election of such men as the pirate Semmes for magistrate of Mobile, or Monroe as Mayor of New Orleans? Do you find it in the fact that the flag is insulted and the national airs hooted at and hissed by crowds of reconstructed rebels? Do you find it in the burning of school houses for the blacks and the mobbing of their teachers? Do you find it in the horrible massacre at Memphis, where men, women and children were slaughtered for their supposed Union sentiments, or in that (if possible) more atrocious butchery at New Orleans, where Union men, unoffending and unarmed, were slain by scores and their dead bodies then mutilated, throwing into the shade the scenes of the reign of terror in Paris, when it was said that France got drunk on blood and vomited crime? Tell me not in the light of such evidence that all is placidity and peace in the South. I tell you that while the physical power of the rebellion is broken, its spirit still survives, and if not seeking for success, is fiercely struggling for vengeance.

I not only say that these people were the enemies of the Government, but I say they were vanquished upon the field of battle. Much stress is put by our opponents upon certain resolutions of Congress at the beginning of the rebellion to the effect that the war was not prosecuted for purposes of subjugation or to interfere with the domestic institutions of the States, but those resolutions referred to the then existing state of things. Congress said in effect to the rebels: Lay down your arms, submit to the Government, stay the effusion of blood, and we promise not to treat you as subjugated; but this offer was spurned with contempt, and they fought on for four long years; they fought till they were defeated, broken down, dispirited and crushed, and then surrendered because there was nothing else that they could do. Compelled as the Government was to conquer a peace, it is not bound by any offer it made to buy that peace. Standing in the light of such history, I say that the rebels are and ought to be treated as the vanquished enemies of the Republic. [Applause.] To say this is not to say that they ought to be treated with unnecessary harshness or cruelty. I advocate no vindictive course toward these people. I ask for no booty or blood. What I mean to affirm is that it is the exclusive right of the loyal people who gained the victory to dictate the terms and conditions upon which the difficulty shall be finally adjusted. I say that the men who gave their fathers and brothers and sons to battle and death for the nation may and ought to insist upon what justice and the future safety of the country require. Ask what is right and submit to nothing that is wrong. Defeated ambition and mortified pride may resist the right as they have resisted, but it will triumph, as it has triumphed. God help the right; good men pray for it; brave men fight for it; and the battle that it wages, once begun,

> Bequeathed by bleeding sire to son,
> Though baffled oft is ever won.

I say that this nation, if it has won anything by its vast expenditure of blood and treasure in the late war, has won the high prerogative of demanding and doing what is right. [Applause.] The position is sneered at by some people and stigmatized as Radical, as though there was opprobrium in that epithet. Radical measures, if I have not misread history, have generally been salutary measures. Radical men have been the reformers of the world; they have been the pioneers in civilization; they have been the pillars of cloud by day and the pillars of fire by night that have led humanity on step by step to its higher and better destiny. Jefferson, Adams and Madison were Radicals in their day, and the Tories were the Conservatives. Bright and Mill, working to enfranchise labor in England, are Radicals, and their aristocratic opponents are Conservatives. Stephens and Roberts and their associates are Radicals, while those who are trampling the freedom of Ireland under their feet are Conservatives. [Great applause.] I admit that I belong to a Radical party, which implies that we intend to reach and if we can eradicate the root of all our troubles. Great calamities have befallen the country, and they have proceeded from certain causes, and we intend if we can to remove those causes so that the calamities may not be reproduced. We mean to root out slavery and all its affiliated abuses. We mean to root out secession and all its political heresies. We mean to root out every ordinance of Government that works inequality or injustice among men, and I will say by way of appendix that we mean to root out Andy Johnson and all who go his policy. [Immense applause.]

Referring to the constitutional amendment submitted by Congress, I will ask if it is not right and just? Is it not right that the Constitution of the United States should protect every citizen in the enjoyment of his civil rights against the partial and prejudicial legislation of any State? Is it not right where a State denies to a class of its inhabitants all political rights, as though they were so many cattle, to exclude that class from the basis of that State's representation? Is it not right that those individuals guilty of the double crime of perjury and treason, who inaugurated this rebellion and drenched the land in tears and blood, shall not be allowed to hold office till their disabilities are removed by a two-thirds vote of Congress? Is it not right that the obligations assumed by the Government during the war shall be held sacred and inviolate? Is it not right that the rebel debt should be repudiated? I say that these things, constituting the substance of the constitutional amendment, are right. They are reasonable, and every rebel State should adopt them without hesitation. They may go further and fare worse.

I have not time to argue the necessity of the proposed amendment. Suffice it to say that the tremendous results of the war, including the abolition of slavery, the destruction of vast amounts of property, the accumulation of immense debts, the upheaval and breaking down of political and social theories and institutions, necessitate a change in a Constitution made and adopted to a different state of things.

This constitutional amendment, with the legislation of the last session, including the Freedmen's Bureau and civil rights bill, make what is called the congressional plan of reconstruction. I shall not discuss these matters in detail. While the Freedmen's Bureau bill might have been improved in some respects, in my judgment it was made necessary by the devastation of war, and there are thousands of people to-day living in the South, white and black, Union and rebel, who would now be sleeping in their graves from starvation had it not been for the agencies of this bureau. The justice of the civil rights bill is perfectly manifest. Take away from a man all right to sue, to be a witness, to buy and hold property, and he is worse than a slave. What is slavery but a deprivation of all political and civil rights? Congress was empowered by the constitutional amendment abolishing slavery to make that amendment effective. To give a person who has been a slave the right of locomotion and nothing else was to make him free as the wild horses are free, but it was not to make him a freeman in the political sense of the term. President Johnson was consulted as to both these bills before they were brought into Congress and made no objection to them. I did not know what he thought of the Freedmen's Bureau bill when I voted for that, but when I voted for the civil rights bill I made no doubt that I was acting in accordance with his views. You will bear in mind that in his message to Congress at the beginning of the last session he said that "good faith requires the security of the freedmen in their liberty and their property; their right to labor and their right to claim the just return of their labor." I supposed he intended by those words to recommend such legislation by Congress as this "good faith" demanded, but I had not then learned what I now have, that Johnson's words, like Rory O'More's dream, "go by contraries." [Great applause.]

Antagonized to the action of Congress is what is called the President's policy. I invite attention to the fact that the Democratic party has no policy upon this subject unless it is the one they had during the war, and that is to let the rebels do just as they please. Look at this party, so boastful of its power, dangling at the coat tail of Andy Johnson, ashamed to hold on and afraid to let go, hoping in that way to be carried into the control of the Government! [Applause.]

I object to Johnson's policy because it proceeds upon the unjust and fatal assumption that no difference is to be made in this country between true men and traitors to the Government. I defy anybody to show there is any provision in Johnson's plan looking to the protection and safety of the loyal people of the South. They are utterly ignored by it. Are not those white men of that section entitled to some consideration, who, breaking away from friends and family ties, hunted in the caves of the mountains and the thickets of the swamps, toiled and struggled and fought through four weary years for the cause of the Union? Are the black millions of that region also to be wholly overlooked? Who of them was ever false to the flag? When or where did the loyal fugitive from a rebel prison fail to find a ready welcome in the lowly cabin of a negro? When or where did one of them refuse to share his bread and water with a thirsty, starving Union man? And how many times when night has spread its blanket of darkness over the earth has a black man taken one of our soldier boys by the hand, and, leading him over mountain and morass, bid him God speed to his free land and home? [Applause.] Ought this nation, now victorious over all its foes, amply able to protect if it will, to turn its back coldly upon these its tried and true friends, crushed under the feet of their merciless enemies, and go on its way rejoicing, while reproach and everlasting shame sit mocking on its plumes? Can a nation guilty of such baseness and ingratitude live and prosper and escape the retribution of a righteous heaven? Impartial justice demands that into every hand, irrespective of color, that gave a cup of cold water or a crust of bread for the cause of the Union the ballot should be put, so that innocence and patriotism may protect themselves, and crime and treason be put down. [Great applause.]

I object to Johnson's policy too because it seeks the immediate and unconditional introduction into Congress of rebel Senators and Representatives from rebel constituencies. I shall not undertake to argue the question as to whether these States are in or out of the Union. I say that all departments of the Government have assumed that they forfeited their rights as States. President Lincoln took that position. Johnson took it when he appointed provisional governors, dictated constitutions and prescribed the qualifications of voters there, which he would not have presumed to do for New York or Ohio. I take the same ground. Now if they forfeited their rights by rebellion, then it is for Congress to decide when the rebellion has ceased and they may resume their rights. Congress has prescribed certain terms and conditions, and says that those States may resume their rights when they accept those terms and conditions. That is only doing what Johnson has done. He told those States that they must accept the terms which he prescribed. Congress says they must accept the terms it prescribes. There is no difference in the principle, only in its application. Congress has been very much censured by the President because the rebel States were not allowed representation in the last session, on the ground that taxation and representation should accompany each other. I shall not depreciate the value of the representation, but I say that taxation and representation do not always accompany each other in the United States. Look at the Territories of Nebraska, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Colorado, Dakota, Arizona, New Mexico and the District of Columbia. Thousands and tens of thousands of American citizens in those Territories, taxed precisely like the people of New York, have no representatives in Congress and no vote for President. Is it any harder for these rebel communities to be temporarily without representation than it is for the Union loving people in these Territories? President Johnson is not in a condition to condemn Congress upon this point, for when the people of Colorado organized a State government and applied for admission into the Union as a State and a bill was passed, the President, overruling the judgment of the people and of Congress, vetoed the bill. He also pocketed a bill passed to admit Nebraska as a State, and so defeated its passage. He is very much concerned about the taxation of rebels without representation, but has no sympathy in this respect for the Union people of Colorado and Nebraska.

Much has been said and a great fog raised about admitting "loyal Representatives." Do you know what the Johnsonites mean by loyal Representatives? I will tell you, and the evidence I produce are the speeches and acts of Andrew Johnson.

On the 22d day of February there was a meeting at a theater in Washington to indorse the President, and at that meeting certain resolutions were adopted, one of which was that any man chosen to Congress from a rebel State was entitled to take his seat upon taking the oath to support the Constitution of the United States. When that meeting adjourned to the White House it was addressed by Johnson, and he said that he approved their resolutions, and going more into detail upon the subject in his speech, he declared in effect that any man who would take an oath to support the Constitution of the United States was a loyal man. Time and again in message and in speech he has denounced Congress for not allowing the eleven rebel States representation. For that reason he has called it an unconstitutional and imperfect body, "a body on the verge of the Government assuming to be a Congress," when he knew that, excepting not to exceed a half dozen, their Senators and Representatives had been thoroughly identified with the rebellion. Every Johnson man in Congress, so far as I know, was in favor of repealing all test oaths and ignoring all the antecedents of men during the war. Be not deceived, fellow citizens, by this smooth talk about loyal Representatives. I tell you that if Johnson's programme is carried out, the same old demagogues that fired the Southern heart into secession and sprinkled blood in the faces of the people to produce war will come trooping back into Congress to resume their former power and influence. [Applause.] Does anybody doubt that Jeff Davis would take an oath to support the Constitution? Time and again he has stood up in the Capitol and called upon God to witness that he would support that Constitution, and the last time his lips were polluted with this perjury his heart was full of an intent to destroy the Constitution and subvert the Government which it created. Johnson and his followers say that they stand upon the Constitution and the law, and there I am willing to meet them. Treason is defined by the Constitution to be the "levying of war against the United States, adhering to their enemies and giving them aid and comfort," and the law makes treason punishable with death. Every man, therefore, who took arms against the Government in the late rebellion was a traitor, and if the Constitution and laws were enforced according to their letter, a large majority of those claiming to be Senators and Representatives from the rebel States, instead of being allowed to take their seats in Congress, would be hung for treason. To enforce the law against these rebels is not practicable, nor is it practicable to allow them all their technical rights as though there had been unbroken peace. We must look at the facts. We must accept the situation. We must not deal with words but things. "The letter killeth but the spirit maketh alive." [Applause.] We are told that we must make concessions for the sake of peace. When we have conquered a peace, we are asked, in order to obtain it, to surrender what we have won in the struggle! What has heretofore been gained by concession? When the Constitution was formed, concession was made to wrong for the sake of union. Other concessions followed: the Missouri compromise was repealed, a more rigid slave law enacted, the Dred Scott decision was made, and finally the nation was required to recognize the right of secession, and when it refused, war ensued. Our history shows that this rapacious spirit, born of chivalry and slavery, has become more arrogant as more concessions were made to it, until in its pride and madness it struck at the life of the nation. Now is the time to make a full settlement with it. Lay down as the foundation that "all men are created free and equal," and your work will be like a "house that is built upon a rock." Compromise away any part of this principle, as has been done heretofore, and future complications and difficulties will arise. Every drop of blood shed in the war calls upon us now to make an adjustment, if we can, that will bury sectionalism with its kindred spirits of secession and slavery in one common grave beyond the power or hope of resurrection. [Great applause.]

Why not let these men in, say our Johnson friends; they are in a minority and can do no harm. I answer that they have always been in the minority, but for sixty years before the war the legislation of Congress and the administration of the Government have been generally shaped to suit the views and interests of Southern politicians. I defy any man to show me any claim that has been made by the leaders of the late rebellion, before, during or since the war, to which the Copperheads, as they are called, have not been ready to accede; and when these Southern people come forward with their rebel debts and claims, is there any reason to suppose that Northern sympathizers would be less accommodating than they have been? I am willing to go as far as any man to promote the interests of the South, but I cannot persuade myself that at this time it would be safe to put political power in its hands. Let us apply the ordinary rules of life to this subject. Suppose that a man has been educated to believe that stealing is no crime. Suppose his associates have always been lawless and abandoned men, and finally he is arrested and arraigned for punishment and professes repentance. Mercy might prompt you, if you had the power, to pardon him, but would you entrust such a man with your treasure? These rebels have been educated to believe that treason to the Government is no crime—they avow their treason and glory in it, and though it may be proper to pardon them, I must think they are dangerous depositaries of political power. Would it be safe to make Davis President, or Lee General of our armies? Surely not, yet it is claimed to be entirely safe to put political power in the hands of the masses who follow them, and whose opinions and feelings they but represent. Upon the issues before the country I find the people divided. On one side are those who were true to their country in the time of its trial, those who gave their votes and their means with those who faced the leaden hail of battle for the cause of the Union. On the other side I find the rebels, the Copperheads, the anti war men and a few bread-and-butter flunkies from the Union party. [Applause.] Is it not strange that the identical men who gave their sons and brothers to fight and die for the Union have now become disunionists, as Johnson claims, and is it not more strange, as he further says, that the traitors, rebels and their sympathizers who labored so much to dissolve the Union have now become the Union party? I emphatically take issue with Johnson and his satellites here, and say that the Union party of this country are more favorable to union than they were during the war. They seek a settlement upon other terms than those prescribed by Johnson. That is all. And they do this because in their judgment justice and safety require it. You know how the Copperheads abused Johnson when he was a candidate with Lincoln. They said he was a drunken tailor from Tennessee. Now they praise him, and the only reason is that now he shows more sympathy with rebels than he did at that time. [Applause.]

President Johnson has lately made a tour through the country, avowedly to attend a funeral, but in fact to make public opinion against Congress. Coming down from his high position as Chief Magistrate of the nation, he has traveled from place to place trying to inflame the prejudices and passions of the people against their representatives. I know what advantage that trip has been to the Union party, how it has exposed the purposes and policy of the man, but for the sake of my country I hope never again to see a similar exhibition. Starting from Washington and swinging round the circle by the way of Chicago and St. Louis, back to the Federal capital, he now awaits the response of the people to his appeal. And the people have begun to respond. Maine, with the same enthusiasm with which she poured her stalwart sons into the tide of war, has responded with 30,000 majority for Congress, and the strong breezes of the Green mountains of Vermont have wafted on that response to the White House at Washington. Pennsylvania has answered as though an earthquake had spoken under the pillars of the Presidential Mansion. Ohio, Indiana, and Iowa have pealed their thunder to the same effect. Minnesota, Wisconsin, Missouri, and Illinois are preparing to follow.

> "Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching" and louder than the shout over victories won I hear the cry of those more distant States,

> "We are coming, Andy Johnson, 300,000 more."

[Great applause.] All eyes are now turned to the struggle in this State. General Dix, you know, was rejected by the Albany Convention because he took part in the war for the Union, and Hoffman was nominated. That nomination was effected by influences from New York City, of which John Morrissey, the prize fighter, and now conservative candidate for Congress, was the chief representative. Hoffman stands to represent the prize fighters, gamblers, and roughs who dwell in the haunts of vice and the dens of debauchery in the city that "man made," while Fenton stands to represent those influences that proceed from the newspaper, the schoolhouse, and the church in the country which "God made."

Choose, ye heads of families and owners of property and all interested in upholding law and good order, which of those influences shall have control in the public affairs of your State. I am a native of New York, and proud of the record it made during the late war. One hundred thousand and more of her sons, when the tocsin of danger to the country sounded, rushed to the forefront of the hottest fight, and now the name of New York is inscribed upon hundreds of white head boards in every bivouac of the nation's dead from the Potomac to the Rio Grande. Men of New York, will you protect by your ballots what you have won by your bayonets? [Cries of "We will!" "We will!"] Pennsylvania, Ohio and the other States have done nobly and well, but "Excelsior" is the motto of New York. Let the Empire State throw her great weight into the balance, and the contest will be closed and the judgment of the American people recorded, not to be reversed. Congress will be vindicated for its devotion to loyal men. Treason will be made odious. Freedom established, true peace will wing its way back to our unhappy shores, and "returning justice lift aloft her scale." And the nation, reunited, redeemed and purified as by fire, will go on its way with the sandals of righteousness upon its feet, and crowns of victory and rejoicing upon its radiant head. [Prolonged applause.]

The Daily Oregonian.

MONDAY MORNING, DEC. 31, 1866.

A Deserved Appointment.

It gives us unusual pleasure to copy the following from the columns of our daily contemporary of this city:

"OFFICIAL ORGAN.—We have been officially notified by the proper authorities at Washington that the President has indicated the Daily Herald as the medium for the publication of all official notices in this department. This is a distinction we had not sought nor hoped to realize; it is nevertheless acceptable in the way of business, and another evidence of the President's discriminating judgment in recognizing the real instead of the sham 'Unionists.'"

We say we are gratified to take notice of this appointment, because we think the editor of the "official organ" is, on account of past services rendered by him to the President, entitled to this mark of distinction. A few words will explain.

In 1864 a paper was published in San Francisco called the Democratic Press, which bore at the head of its leading column these words printed in broad capitals: "Beriah Brown, Editor." The coincidence between this name and the name displayed at the head of the "official organ" is very remarkable. When Andrew Johnson was nominated for the Vice Presidency the said paper—the Press—spoke contemptuously of him as a "renegade chiv.," intimating that he was a traitor to his State, and adding the highly flattering words: "Poor little Andy Johnson of Tennessee, is awarded the barren honor of the second place on the ticket for all the dirt he has eaten." This complimentary notice appeared in the Press of June 9th, 1864.

But this is a small part of what the editor of the "official organ" has done to merit the kind remembrances of the "renegade chiv., poor little Andy." In the Democratic Press of September 16th, 1864, we find the following editorial paragraph:

> The Convention at Baltimore went still further (than the Fremont Convention) in repudiating the Constitution by nominating Andrew Johnson for Vice President; who by the laws of Congress and the laws of war is an alien enemy, not a citizen of any State in the Union with a representation in Congress or a voice in the election of President. The qualifications of Jefferson Davis or General Lee for President or Vice President are precisely those of Andrew Johnson. The party making this latter nomination did not aim at a constitutional election of a candidate, but the seizure of the Government by usurpation. It matters not that Andrew Johnson is not a citizen of the United States nor entitled to vote in the election, if he can aid them in over-riding the Constitution and obtaining power. It is another singular fact that three out of the four Abolition candidates are native of slave States. Fremont of South Carolina, Lincoln of Kentucky, and Johnson of North Carolina,—all aliens and enemies to the States of their nativity.

Now if this does not give the "official organ" a clear title to the bounty of the President, will any snarling Radical or envious Democrat who may question its claims, show how anybody could possibly have a clearer title? Away with such absurd complaints! The "official organ" is the rightful beneficiary, and its editor could not have done more to merit "poor little Andy's" favorable consideration if he (the editor) had been one of that chivalrous company who went to Johnson's house in Tennessee,—we mean the "alien enemy's" house,—and scourged with whips and rods the "renegade chiv's" wife and daughters.

No; the claims of the "official organ" are not to be disputed on such frivolous grounds. It would be an altogether unheard of proceeding that would turn one's title to a benefice into an argument for depriving the possessor of his legitimate claims.

But there is another argument stated in the last of the above extracts from the Press that is not so easily disposed of. Nobody will question the propriety of this act of the President's giving the editor of the "official organ" an appointment as a reward for services rendered to the "renegade chiv;" but, taking the appointee's own arguments as a guide, there is much doubt about "poor little Andy's" right to make appointments, seeing that, when elected, he was an "alien enemy;" that he was "not a citizen of the United States;" that his election was therefore "not constitutional," and that his elevation to office was a "seizure of the Government by usurpation." In view of these facts the editor of the "official organ" must see that notwithstanding he deserves well of the "renegade chiv," he holds his appointment by a very frail tenure.

Several more very interesting facts are stated in the above extracts. It appears that the editor of the "official organ" was of opinion two years ago that the Union was actually dissolved; that no citizen of a seceding State was a citizen of the United States; that all loyal Southern men were traitors to the States of their nativity, and that none of them had any rights as citizens of the United States. At that time he declared in the most emphatic manner that Johnson had no right to be a candidate for Vice-President. There has since been some change in this editor's views. He now affirms that the insurgent States never were out of the Union, and that no State has a right to go out; he believes that citizens of the Southern States never were "aliens," and that they never were absolved from their allegiance to the United States; he not only maintains that loyal Southerners like Andrew Johnson have always possessed rights in the Union, but insists that all rebels,—men who "obeyed their States" and who two years ago were "alien enemies," now have all the rights of citizens of the United States, and that these rights were never forfeited. Such is a fair exposition of the eternal and immutable principles of "Democracy."

The "official organ" institutes a comparison between "the real and the sham Unionists." That its editor may be ranged in the latter class where he belongs, we quote what he wrote in the Press on the 28th of June, 1864:

> We do most emphatically deny the right of the Government to coerce the obedience of sovereign States.

The "official organ" will, of course, hereafter echo its benefactor's opinions. It will speak by the card. Whatever appears in its columns must be understood as being "published by authority." It will be "poor little Andy's" mouthpiece for the State of Oregon. Its denunciations of "Radicalism" will hereafter be "official." Let us hope that its editor will use language less foul than that used by his patron. Could we believe that it would do him any good, we should invoke, in the language of the traveler in the Sentimental Journey: "Ye powers that touch the tongue with eloquence, grant him decent words to exclaim in."

We read that when Cortes went to Mexico he burned his ships behind him. We suggest to the editor of the "official organ" that the best thing he can do as often as he is compelled to change from place to place, is to burn his past record. Records are very ugly things.

The National Intelligencer at last yields on the question of Civil Rights, saying: "There never can be a stable peace in this country until the colored race be made entirely equal before the law in regard to Civil Rights." What say the Copperheads of this State to this, who last spring based their principal opposition to the Union party on the ground that that party had wrongfully given Civil Rights to colored men?

Says the Boston Journal: "Secretary Seward thinks he is sure of the Conservative nomination for the next Presidency. But the nomination of that party will not be precisely equivalent to an election, he must remember."

The Nevada Legislature stands thus: In the Senate, Unionists 16, Democrats 3; in the House Unionists 34, Democrats 4.

FROM WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

From the Vancouver Register of Saturday we have the following:

LEGISLATION.

A bill to repeal an act passed last winter, locating a territorial road from Dillon's land claim to Lake river slough in this country, passed the House on Dec. 20th. A new road law had been reported by the committee. It is much like the old law of 1857 and '58. It provides for a per capita road tax of four dollars on all between the ages of 18 and 50 and a property tax of two mills to be assessed with and collected, if delinquent at the same time and in the same manner as county and Territorial taxes. The commissioners are to divide the county into convenient road districts and according to the wishes of the people; the supervisors to be elected by the inhabitants of the district. Delinquent taxes are to be paid into a county road fund, which is under the control of the commissioners.

A large number of memorials have been introduced and a portion of them passed among which are the following; for a semi-weekly mail service on Puget Sound; for a military road from Port Angelos to Gray's harbor and for an appropriation to improve the Mullan road. A bill passed the House incorporating the Mill Plain Cemetery Association, also a bill authorizing Wm. Ranck to establish a fishery and build a road on Lewis river.

An effort will be made at an early day to continue the Territorial road from the Cascades to the Dalles; also to secure a large appropriation from the Territorial Treasury for the road from Monticello to Olympia, and for one or more of the roads across the Cascade Mountains, for which an addition Territorial tax will be demanded.

On motion of Mr. Knapp, the hurdy gurdy license act was taken from the table and very learnedly discussed in the House, and finally passed. It is nearly death on the waiting women in saloons and professional dancers, as it requires a license of $300 per quarter for these establishments.

A bill to locate the Penitentiary at Steilacoom has been referred to the delegations from Pierce and Clarke counties. The Legislature adjourned on the 24th inst. and will reassemble on the 4th of January, 1867.

DIVISION OF THE TERRITORY.

A few weeks since we alluded to this question as being discussed in some of the public journals in Oregon and this Territory. We have heard since a number of prominent men both here and in Oregon discuss the subject and the general conclusion seems to be, that a new State ought to be created out of the eastern portion of Oregon and Washington and that the Puget Sound country together with our portion of the Territory ought to form a part of Oregon. Preliminary steps are now being taken in certain influential quarters to consummate this remodeling of boundaries.

NARROW ESCAPE.

A German by the name of Piper residing on the East fork of Lewis, while going in his skiff with a grist to Scappoose mills was upset in the river and narrowly escaped drowning, he being unable to swim. He lost all his wheat, provisions, blankets, sacks, &c.

PUBLIC LANDS AND INTERNAL REVENUE.

The Register and Receiver of the two Land Offices at Olympia and Vancouver have furnished an abstract of the amount of business done at their respective offices during the past year, from which it appears that from the 1st day of December, 1865, to the 30th day of November, 1866, the following amounts of public lands have been purchased or settled upon, under the pre-emption and homestead acts:

AT VANCOUVER.
No. of acres sold at $1 25 per acre	7,030
No. of acres under homestead act	16,034
No. of acres entered with military land warrants	2,400
No. of acres entered under pre-emption act	3,680
Total lands disposed of	30,054
AT OLYMPIA.
No. of acres sold at $1 25 per acre	10,788
No. of acres entered under homestead act	9,309
No. of acres entered under military land warrants	2,852
No. of acres entered under pre-emption act	6,283
Total number of acres disposed of	29,234

From the Surveyor General's Office I have received the following statement of the steady progress of the surveying of the public lands;

Total number of acres surveyed in the Territory of Washington, up to the close of the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1866, 3,873,541.

Estimated amount surveyed and under contract, exclusive of townships not subdivided, or to be subdivided, for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1867, $500,880. Total surveyed and under contract, $43,80,421. Number of miles surveyed and under contract, for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1867, $1,715. Estimated cost of surveys, including standard, for the year ending June 30th, 1867, $18,250.

The assessor and collector of Internal Revenue have given the following information:

Assessed during the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1866, $63,854 48. Amount of United States Internal Revenue collected during the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1866, $59,402. Estimated amount for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1867, $75,000.

MONTANA ITEMS.—A bill has been introduced in the Montana Legislature to remove the capital from Virginia City to Helena.

The Helena Gazette says there are reports in town of the discovery of a dry gulch, which at a depth of thirty feet to the bed rock, pays sixty cents to the pan. There are also reports of a new discovery of placer diggings somewhere near the head of Silver creek.

The Post says Dr. J. P. Tierman and L. G. Turnley have received the appointment as Commissioners from Montana to the great International Exhibition at Paris, and will leave on Christmas.

The citizens of Idaho City have prepared a remonstrance, in the shape of a petition numerously signed, to the Legislature, against obtaining a charter of incorporation of that town. They do not want to become a city; have to pay too high for it, says the Times.

In the Ninth Massachusetts district Washburne, Republican candidate for Congress received 12,185 votes, and Heywood, his Democratic competitor, 1,705. The Ninth Massachusetts is not a "close" district.

MONOPOLIES—CENTRALIZATION EVERYWHERE —Several of our contemporaries of the press including a few professed and learned authorities, are expending much breath and ink upon the several questions of monied and corporate monopolies tendencies to central zation with direct trade the best locations for the great sea ports &c &c. Among all these Portland is most for some gentle chain. The P T Co attaches a feeling east gate to [illegible] Helens is suggested visions of future real internal [illegible] and major property [illegible] O S N Co is informed quite loudly that it has not understood its own best interests San Francisco is inveighed against as a monstrous Ogre to whom Oregon is forced to pay tribute and the defendants generally are beset by such a swarm of newspaper and letter writer gadflies as is fearful to look upon. This war of words however serious it may be, and how soon fatal it may eventually prove to the wicked cities which have presumed against reason and certain other good locations to aggregate so much wealth and power within their corporate limits, has its ludicrous features as well as its savagely serious ones. One of the writers last alluded to launches the following, ludicrously profound sentence at California s unfortunate centre of wealth

"The accumulated wealth of San Francisco would be dead capital, the city a stagnant pool of aggregated means riches but for the constant currents of trade extending into the country, keeping up the vital circulation by constant repletion "

The originality and profundity of this philosophy is equaled only by that of the celebrated passage in the message of Governor Whiteaker in 1862 where after recounting the rise and fall of the great floods of the preceding winter he says If it had rained two weeks longer the water would have been much higher —or words substantially to that effect Either of the quotations is quite worthy of the Bunsbyan philosophy contained in the famous sentence "If so be it is why then so be "

STORMY WEATHER —The steamers from the lower Columbia encountered severe South-east gales on Saturday During the entire week past and portions of the week ending Saturday 22d, strong winds prevailed over the entire extent of the coast as far as heard from resulting almost everywhere in more or less damage. The interior of California has been visited with a flood scarcely less destructive than the great flood of 1862, while the bay and coast suffered considerable damage to shipping. Vessels remained weather bound in Humboldt Bay, Crescent City had its streets and sidewalks torn up by high tides and the raging surf Astoria was visited by tides higher than ever before known, Port Townsend and Olympia, on Puget Sound, were flooded to an extent never before witnessed—houses that never before had been touched by salt water being flooded and, in some instances, washed away, Victoria is said to have had similar visitations from the "big chuck" During all this time, the Willamette valley has been singularly exempt from the ravages or rather, damages of the storm. We have had high winds, but only very few instances of injury from them beyond the prostration of fences heavy rains have fallen but there has been nothing like a flood anywhere the Willamette has not at any time reached a higher than a good boating stage and not a bridge in the valley so far as we have heard has been disturbed. The river is now falling and the storm king seems to have abandoned all intention of kicking up a muss in our favored Oregon We give him our thanks

VANCOUVER ITEMS —We learn from the Register of the 29th that the Public School at Vancouver will open on Wednesday the 2d under the direction of Messrs. Hathaway and Spink .....The German Concordia Society will give their opening ball on Sylvester Eve (this evening) at Brants' Hall. The invitation to attend is general The Register makes the following generous proposition to the Firemen of Vancouver which will be appreciated by the Firemen of Portland Willamette Fire Engine Co No 1, of Portland, will give a ball on Wednesday (Monday) for the benefit of the company Now we are indebted as Firemen to many of our Portland friends who, at the occasion of the ladies' ball for the benefit of our Fire Company assisted us generously by purchasing tickets. Would it not be well for our Firemen to assist our brothers in Portland upon this occasion and purchase some tickets? We understand the Fannie Troup will run to Portland for a mere nominal sum upon that occasion, if enough will go to make a respectable crowd in numbers, and if it is inconvenient to some of our men to go, they might purchase tickets anyhow, thus testifying their good will The officers of Washington Lodge No 4, F & A. M., were installed on Thursday evening 27th, by Louis Sohns P D G M. The report of the Superintendent of Schools states that the number of school districts in Clarke county is 30, scholars reported for this year, 867 the number of schools taught by teachers with certificates, 11 amount of school fund on hand for distribution, $2,547,22

KNOCKED DOWN AND ROBBED.—A man whose name, we learn, is McCord—an attache of the Asylum in East Portland, was knocked down and robbed Saturday evening, on the road between the Cemetery and the school house. He relates the circumstances substantially as follows! He had been paid off on Saturday and had started about six o'clock to come to the city to send some money below by the Oriflamme. He first met a man, whom on account of the darkness he could not recognize who said "good evening" to him. In the course of a few [illegible], he met another who struck him on the head staggering him against the picket fence which supported him during his temporary unconsciousness. He thinks that the man who struck him the man who passed him and [illegible], who came up from the opposite direction, closed [illegible] at the same time They ripped his pants down, tearing open the pocket in which his money was and got his purse containing $175 He had a gold watch [illegible] pocket and while they were trying to get that he came to and struggled to prevent it Without accomplishing the job of getting the watch the men became frightened and fled.

FROM TILLAMOOK.—Mr F Q. Moore arrived in this city [illegible] evening from Tillamook, by way of Astoria He reports that the schooner Champion arrived at the bar on Friday the 14th and was sailing up the channel inside the bar, when the wind suddenly died away and the [illegible] drifted out to sea, since which time she has not been heard from Mr Terwilliger stood on the point at Bailey's and saw her drift out The schooner had on board three men—Capt. Hodge and two sailors named Foley and Cook. The latter was a resident of Tillamook Bay. Foley is the same who exhibited here, on the last trip of the Champion, specimens of coal discovered lately at [illegible] Mr Moore represents that in consequence of the non-arrival of the schooner which was loaded with flour for winter supply, many are destitute of [illegible] Mr M also states that the upper part of an ocean steamer's wheel house came ashore at Elk Creek, below Tillamook Heads, a few days since It is painted brown or dark There is nothing on the wreck to indicate what vessel it had belonged to. The bolts in the timbers and planking are fresh

OREGON CITY ITEMS.—We gather the subjoined items from the Enterprise: The following officers of Multnomah Lodge, No 1, A. F & A M were installed on the evening of the 27th J E. Harford W M. J B Holmes, S. W; David Dalglish, J W , Forbes Barclay, Treas T J McCarver, Secretary N W Randall, Tyler......The Good Templars have fitted up their Hall in tasteful and comfortable style, and are very soon to have a fine cabinet organ ......The Chorman Bros have recently received from Messrs Thurmauer & Zinn of San F[illegible], a present of a beautiful flag eighteen by twenty-two feet in size The Enterprise accounts a [illegible] for an organization into an association or club, of the pioneers of Oregon resident at Oregon City and vicinity Many of such residents date their advent into Oregon, from twenty to twenty three years back A new side-walk is to be built from the break water near Smith's Foundry to Canemah. Judging from the Enterprise's accounts, the people of "Lowell" little big, short and tall, had a very large sized Christmas.

HOUSEBREAKING AGAIN —During Saturday night, three houses in the upper part of the city were entered and [illegible] by and robbed of small amounts of money and some jewelry The coincidence in the time of these [illegible] leads to the belief that there were several individuals who intended to make a big haul and get off on the steamer Sunday morning The values obtained were, however, inconsiderable The persons whose houses were entered, were Mr Charles Lamar Second street, Mr Wm Wetzel on Main street, and Mr Fran[illegible], on the corner of Columbia and Third The burglars were cautious enough to leave no clue to their identity

[illegible] EAST.—Gen. Steele and some members of his staff, took passage by the Oriflamme to San Francisco The object of this visit is not made public but the Register speaking of it in anticipation couples it with the long delayed removal of the Headquarters of the Department to Portland, in such a way as to lead to the impression that his visit may have to do more or less with that matter We have heard it said by persons who have conversed with Gen Steele that he has never fully approved of the policy of removing the Headquarters from Fort Vancouver

TREASURE SHIPMENT —The treasure shipment per steamer Oriflamme to San Francisco yesterday was as follows

Wells, Fargo & Co....	$200 000
Ladd & Tilton ..	90 000
Goldsmith Bros.......	20 000
Millard & VanSchuyver	5 000
Total	$315 000

I. O. O. F.—At a regular meeting of Oregon Lodge No. 3, I O O F , on the 29th the following officers were elected to serve the ensuing term S M Lyon President J S. Rosenbaum Vice President S. Leben [illegible], Secretary Leo Metzger Financial Secretary N [illegible], Treasurer N Goodman Assistant Monitor; A J F[illegible] Warden; Leopold Mayer Guardian

THE BALL TO-MORROW —Remember the Willamette s ball [illegible]. A ticket bought, is so much aid and comfort to the city's oldest fire company—the staunch and vigilant enemy of your most dreaded enemy

U S CIRCUIT COURT —We notice by a telegram from Judge Field from Washington Dec 11th to Judge Field [illegible] San Francisco that Judge Deady has been appointed to hold the February term of the United States Circuit Court at San Francisco The order for this appointment was made by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and mailed Dec 6th. Judge Deady of Nevada [illegible] the December term on the [illegible] Monday

BIG FREIGHTS —Notwithstanding the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] still venture [illegible] strange [illegible]

FREIGHT LIST —The Orifam [illegible] freight consisted of 20 bbls beef 1 case cigars 9 cases mdse 1 bale mdse 3 cases quartz 3 rolls leather [illegible] 1 case flour 12? green [illegible] 1 case shoes 2050 quarter sacks flour 100 boxes eggs [illegible] 10 cases lard [illegible] kegs [illegible] 114 cases bitters, 21 barrels [illegible] half barrels [illegible] half barrels dried apples and 2030 boxes apples

WILLAMETTE FALLS —Per Senator Saturday Dec 28th 81 boxes apples 498 quarter sacks flour 80 sacks feed

Per Alert Saturday [illegible] boxes apples 3 boxes eggs 1 trunk 7 bales woolen goods 4 [illegible] 1 keg blankets 7 gunnies bacon 4 dressed hogs and 91 sacks feed

CENTRALIZATION —The enormous and monopolizing power of Portland s wealth continues to be felt in every direction as may be seen by the constant flow into the city of produce from up the river from down the river from across the river, and from the country opposite the river The tendency toward centralization is obvious

GO TO RICHARDSON S TO-DAY —Richardson auctioneer sells to-day a large lot of Bohemian glass ware which arrived by the steamer Oriflamme The other articles which he will offer are too numerous etc

CHICAGO AND ST LOUIS —Thirty years ago the population of Chicago was 4 000 now it is 264, 000 and rapidly increasing and in spite of the prophecy that after the war was over the city would stop growing there have been nine thousand buildings put up there the past year A resident of Chicago thus looks at the question of the future supremacy of that city above St Louis —

In the first place Chicago for almost six months in the year can receive freight from the seaboard (via New York and the St. Lawrence) by water Freight by this communication competes most successfully with the railroad It is merely a question of time In the second place from Chicago north and northwest, railroad communication reaches (or will shortly) from Omaha to St. Paul and Lake Superior—and the whole country between these points depends upon the Garden City of the West In the third place the road from Chicago to Omaha is in the hands of one company, and freight from New York to any point on the Pacific railroad will be in the control of that company, which will allow them to compete with any other means of communication farther north or farther south. Now St. Louis has no water communication with the seaboard No railroad strikes northward to any considerable distance, except perhaps that to Chicago (!) And finally, the Chicago and Omaha road will tap the southern Pacific road at any point chosen, which with the first advantage Chicago has will enable her to keep her freights

EXECUTIONS IN SPAIN —Galignani describes a singular formality with which executions in Spain are accompanied After the executioner has performed his office, he is surrounded by gendarmes and loaded with chains, and taken to prison, and thence before an examining magistrate, when the following dialogue takes place "You are accused of having taken the life of a man" "Yes," answers the executioner, "it is true" "What was your motive for the crime?" "To obey the law and fulfill the mission confided to me by justice " An indictment is then drawn up, and on the following day the man is taken before the tribunal, which immediately pronounces an acquittal, and the prisoner is liberated, after his confinement of twenty four hours

George N Sanders declares his willingness to be pardoned A J may not forget, however, that George was one of those who accused him of conniving at the assassination of Mr Lincoln.

NEARLY GONE.—The old year is nearly gone; the new year comes on apace and nobody will want to be caught in a shabby suit of clothes. The chances for buying a fine suit of Barman Bros before the close of 1866, are now limited to a few days; but we are happy to announce that these gentlemen are laying out plans for a brilliant campaign for 1867 Having taken that fine brick building now known as the "City of Paris Store," on Front street, they will open early in 1867, a clothing house equal to any in America As Barman Bros. have kept the lead in 1866, so they intend to keep it in 1867

AT PRIVATE SALE.—Mr Cohen having sold at auction the greater part of his stock of jewelry, will dispose of the balance on very favorable terms at private sale, until New Year. He has yet on hand a choice lot of ladies' jewelry, such as finger and ear rings, breast-pins, neck chains, lockets etc

HOLIDAY PRESENTS —WEIL BROS, have a large and varied assortment of fine dress goods—such as Moire antique silk dresses, French and Irish poplins etc.—which they are selling off at cost, affording an excellent opportunity for the purchase of HOLIDAY PRESENTS They also offer, at cost the choicest stock of custom made clothing and Gents' furnishing goods

Attention Fenian Guards. Members will assemble at their Armory on Wednesday evening Jan 2, 1867, for the annual election of officers and to transact other important business By order of

IMPORTANCE OF HAVING DAVIS' PAIN KILLER ALWAYS ON HAND.
Wonderful Cure of the Rev D L Brayton Missionary in India who was stung by a Scorpion
Extract from his letter published in the Baptist Missionary Magazine
For the first time since I have been in India, I have been stung by a scorpion I went out this morning to my exercises, as usual at early dawn and having occasion to use an old box on taking off the cover I put my hand on a scorpion which immediately resented the insult by thrusting its sting into the palm of my hand The instantaneous and severe pain which darted through the system is quite incredible, what an awful virulent pain their sting must contain! I FLEW TO MY BOTTLE OF DAVIS PAIN KILLER and found it to be true to its name after a few moments' relief, I saturated a small piece of sponge bound it on my hand and went about by exercises feeling no more particular inconvenience.

The Little Girl that Meets Me

There's a little girl that meets me
And with laughter ever greets me,
And to kiss her oft entreats me,
As I stray
Long the path of life so dreary
When the saddened heart and weary,
Shades the sunlight, shining near me,
On my way

She has eyes as blue as heaven
(Only aged about eleven)
But unto her God has given
Such a heart
That forever she is singing
And her sweet voice ever ringing
Beauty o'er the rapt heart bringing,
Sweet as art

With her sunny hair so early
With her teeth so white and pearly
I have met her late and early
By the way,
And I take her hand and press it
In my own just to caress it—
Pretty little hand—God bless it!"
I do say

May the world smile kindly on her
Benedictions fall upon her,
Angels be her guard of honor,
As she goes
Through this world of ours singing,
Peace to troubled spirits bringing,
No grief her pure heart wringing,
With its woe

May the sweetest harp in heaven—
Brightest crown that e'er was given,
Where the waves of life are driven
Past the throne—
Echo to her dainty finger,
'Pon her pure brow ever linger,
While each angel be a singer,
Calling home

What are "Shooting Stars?"

A writer in the Springfield (Mass) Republican thus discourses on this question

In the transition from summer's heat to winter's cold, there is necessarily a transition likewise in the electrical condition of the atmosphere This will appear evident when one reflects that we have the electrical displays of thunder showers in the summer, while they very seldom occur in the winter. In the transition from summer to winter, the atmosphere adapts itself to a new electrical condition, and in effecting this change, active electricity is given out in large sparks or balls, which are called meteors Whenever the electrical condition of the atmosphere becomes changed or disturbed, as it is by summer's heat and other causes, its equilibrium is restored in a variety of ways. In the polar regions it is restored by the agency of the northern lights, in the tropics, by the tornado, water spout, thunder gust and whirlwind, in the temperate zones by the thunder shower, and by meteors in the higher regions of the atmosphere everywhere.

It is natural that in passing from the heat and activity of the summer to the cold of winter, from an atmosphere in a humid, swollen state to one that is contracted and condensed, there should be a change from the thunder shower to the meteor as an agency in the restoration of the electrical equilibrium that become disturbed thereby It is reasonable, therefore, that there should be more meteors in the temperate zone in the fall of the year than at other seasons But it must be evident that there is no periodic certainty in the greater or less activity of the meteoric agency or in the greater or less number of meteors that will be seen. This will depend upon circumstances that are at present far beyond our knowledge As there will be more cases of typhoid fever some fall seasons than there are at others, so there will be a greater number of meteors seen some falls than at others, and perhaps the causes are similar, if not the same, in both instances.

There are some reasons why there should not be seen as many meteors this fall as there usually are. One is that the season has been an extraordinary one, the month of August, usually one of our hottest months, having been quite cool this year, and another reason is that the temperate zone has been visited this fall with tornadoes and hurricanes of more than common violence. And besides this, the northern lights have been more active during the last eight years than they have been before in a long time.

With regard to the hight of the meteor there is no evidence that they occur beyond the limits of the atmosphere. The great meteor of July, 1860, was not much, if any, more than sixteen miles above the surface of the earth. At Norfolk, Virginia, it appeared to be low in the north, while by the observing people of Portland, Maine, it was not noticed at all, and probably could not have been seen there.

Balls of electricity occur not only as meteors, but they are often seen in thunder showers, and upon the masts and spars of vessels at sea. Indeed, I may be said that the "will o' the wisp," which occurs over in low grounds, is to the meteor what the fog is to the flying cloud, both being the same in the general principles of their origin, yet differing in character from incidental circumstances.

If these view are correct, it would be as vain to look for a periodical return of showers of meteors as it would be for the reappearance of the larger and more brilliant meteors which have been seen from time to time in various quarters of the globe We may expect to see more meteors in the fall than in other seasons, and a greater number in some falls than in others, and this is all.

A Snake Story.—The Vicksburg Mississippi Times has the following:

One of the officers of that popular steamer, the Calumet, which, as everybody knows, plies regularly between this point and the Tallahatchie river, tells the following:

On the Tallahatchie river, not long since, an enormous rattlesnake found a setting turkey hen on her nest, and swallowed her in exactly two minutes and forty seconds, by the watch, and then swallowed the eggs, twenty-one in number, three at a time, without cracking a shell, after which he immediately relapsed into that state of torpidity peculiar to Tallahatchie snakes after a big dinner Anxious to see the denouement of this snake affair, the owner of this unfortunate fowl allowed his snakeship to go unmolested, who coiling himself in a fence corner, remained there quietly for nine days, with his mouth open all the time, when, the eggs having finished the process of incubation, the juvenile turkeys stepped out of his mouth, one at a time, but as each one of them put its foot on terra firma, it was swallowed again by this 2 40 snake, before it had time to look at the sun. All this happened about six weeks ago, and as soon as the last turkey was disposed of, the rattlesnake was caught and put in a barrel of 295 per cent. alcohol, and on every clear day those young turkeys can yet be heard chirping

A Good One.—During the first years of the war, when change was scarce and some large firms were issuing currency of their own, a farmer went to a store in a neighboring town and bought some goods, and gave the merchant a five dollar bill, of which he wanted 75 cents back. The merchant counted out the amount and handed it over to the farmer. He looked at it a moment and enquired, "What's this?" "It's my currency," said the merchant. "Wal, 'taint good for nothin' where I live," said the farmer "Very well," replied the merchant, "keep it until you get a dollar's worth and bring it to my store and I will give you a dollar bill for it" The farmer pocketed the change and departed. A few weeks after he went into the same store and bought goods to the amount of one dollar, and after paying over the identical 75 cents he took out a handful of pumpkin seeds and counted out 25 of them, and passed them over to the merchant. "Why," says the merchant, "what's this" "Wal," says the farmer, "this is my currency, and when you get a dollar's worth, bring it out to my place and I will give you a dollar bill for it"—Bellows Falls Times.

Goethe was in company with a mother and daughter, when the latter, being reproved for something, blushed and burst into tears. He said "How beautiful your reproach has made your daughter That crimson hue and those silvery tears become her much better than any ornament of gold or pearls, these may be hung on the neck of any woman, but those are never seen disconnected with moral purity A full blown flower besprinkled with purest hue, is not so beautiful as this child blushing beneath her parent's displeasure and shedding tears of sorrow for her fault A blush is the sign which nature hangs out to show where chastity and honor dwell"

"Colonel Felix O Bryen, of Washington," says a correspondent of the New York Herald, writing from Buffalo, November 5th "was serenaded at his hotel in this city this evening" Felix, it appears, has become a leader in the Fenian army Heaven save the Fenian cause now—especially the treasury

A Dead March.—A lady pianist, on being called upon for a dead march, asked a satirical professor of music what dead march she should play, to which he replied 'Any one which you may play will be a dead one, for you are sure to murder it"

Singular.—Very curious statements sometimes appear in print A Pittsfield journal says "A man fell dead in this town last week, and before assistance could reach him his life was nearly extinct."

Lord Buckingham was once at a dinner where Mr Grubb was requested to sing He begged to be excused, urging that he knew not what to sing. 'Sing I'd be a butterfly,' suggested the nobleman

A Curious Story.—Le Petit Journal has curious stories sometimes. This is one Lately a traveler passed in a carriage along the Avenue de Neuilly, the night was dark, all at once the horses stopped, and the traveler saw that the animals had met an obstacle At the same moment a man raised himself from before the horses, uttering a cry. "Why don't you take care said the traveler

"Ah" cried the man, "you would do better, instead of hallowing, to lend me your lantern"

"What for?"

"I had 300 francs in gold on my person my pocket has broken and all is fallen in the street It is a commission with which my master has entrusted me If I do not find the money I am a ruined man"

"It is not easy to find the pieces on such a night, have you none left?"

"Yes, I have one"

"Give it to me" The man hesitated

"Give it to me, it is as a means of recovering the others"

The poor devil gave him his last coin The traveler whistled, a magnificent Danish dog began to leap around him Here said the traveler putting the coin to the nose of the dog, "look" The intelligent creature snuffed a moment at the money, and then began to run about the road. Every minute he returned leaping, and deposited in the hands of his master a napoleon In about twenty minutes the whole sum was recovered The poor fellow who had got his money back turned, full of thanks towards the traveler, who had now got into his carriage "Ah, you are my preserver," said he, "tell me at least your name."

"I have done nothing," said the traveler, "your preserver is my dog, his name is Rabat Joie" And then, whipping his horses, he disappeared in the darkness.

A Bully Preacher.—Our little four year-old Carrie went with her aunt to a revival meeting The preacher was very earnest in his delivery, and she was very much interested "Mother," said she when she came home, "I have heard such a smart minister—he stamped and pounded and made such a noise! And by and by he got so mad he came out of the pulpit and shook his fists at the folks, and there wasn't anybody dared go up and fight him!"

Hartley Coleridge once being asked which of Wordsworth's productions he considered the prettiest, very promptly replied, "His daughter Dora."

HAS located in Portland in CARTER'S NEW BUILDING, for the permanent cure of all private diseases, such as syphilis, gonorrhea gleet, strictures &c He also calls the attention of those suffering with

to call at his office and be at once relieved Surgical operations SKILFULLY performed on the EYES for film, cataract, strabismus or cross eyes

Below are some of the many testimonials

This is to certify that I, John H Jodwan, was blind for over nine years and I tried all means of a cure and and many doctors, and all of no effect And I spent all the means I had Finally I had to become a county charge, and when I was taken to Dr G W Brown, and stated my case to him, and misfortune, he at once commenced to treat my eyes and now I am well, and I commend all those that are suffering with diseases of the eyes to call on Dr G W Brown The reason why I do this is to let suffering humanity know where they can be cured J H JODWAN

This is to certify that my daughter was almost blind for over seven years, and was doctored by other physicians without obtaining any relief when finally I took her to Dr G W Brown, who examined her case, and at once began to give her treatment, and her sight has been entirely restored I do this to let those who are suffering with diseases of the eyes know where they can obtain a cure It has been three years since her eyes were cured, and they are yet sound

Salem July 21 1866

This is to certify that I was blind for over four months and almost blind for one year and a half I tried several eye doctors but received no benefit I had almost given my case up as hopeless when fortunately I heard of Dr G W Brown now of Salem I was induced to try him, he performed a surgical operation on my eyes, and gave me treatment I soon began to recover, and in a short time I was perfectly cured I do this in justice to one who rescued me from a fate worse than death, and also for the benefit of those who are laboring under similar afflictions that they may know where they can get relief It is now about eight months since my eyes were cured and they still remain good I can see to read the finest print without difficulty, and my eyes can bear the strongest light without pain

War Department, Adjutant General's Office,
Washington, September 10, 1866

1 All applications shall be filed within the period of six months, from the 1st day of October, 1866, and before any payments are made, shall be classified by regiments, battalions, or other separate organizations, and no application filed after that period shall be settled until after the former shall have been paid

2 No application shall be entertained unless accompanied by the original discharge of the soldier and the affidavit required by the fourteenth section of the Act, and the further affidavit that he has not received, nor is he entitled to receive from the United States, under any laws or regulations prior to the Act of July 28, 1866, more than $100 bounty for any and all military service rendered by him during the late rebellion, over and above the amount therein claimed

3 All applications for the additional bounty authorized by this Act from surviving soldiers shall be in the form hereinafter prescribed, and the evidence of identity shall be the same as is now required, and applications from the heirs of deceased soldiers shall be in the form now required by the Treasury Department.

4. As soon as the examination of the claims of any regiment, or other independent organization shall have been properly acted upon the Paymaster General shall take the necessary steps for their prompt payment

5 A register shall be kept in the Paymaster General's office, and also in the office of the Second Auditor, of all claims presented under the Law, in which the claimants will be classified by regiments etc If the claims be allowed, the amount of bounty paid to each will be noted and if rejected the cause of rejection will be distinctly stated

6 In the applications for bounty as required by the third of these rules, the affidavit shall state each and every period of service rendered by the claimant and also that he never served otherwise than as herein stated

7 Organizations irregularly in the service of the United States, or called out for special purposes, as State Militia, Home Guards, etc, and not included in the general bounty laws, are not included within the meaning of the Act

8 Soldiers enlisted for 'three years or during the war," who were discharged by reason of the termination of the war, shall be considered as having served out the period of their enlistment, and are entitled to bounty under this Act

9 The minority of heirs claimants for bounty under this Act, must be proven to have existed at the date of its passage Parents shall receive jointly the bounty to which they may be entitled as heirs, unless the father has abandoned the support of his family, in which case it all be paid to the mother Non residence in the United States shall not be a bar to the claim of heirs, who would otherwise legally inherit.

1 Those who, after serving the full period of their enlistment, were dishonorably discharged at its expiration

2 Those discharged during enlistment by way of favor or punishment

3 Those discharged on account of disability contracted in the service but not occasioned by wounds received "in the line of duty," who shall not have previously served two or three years respectively at the time of discharge

4 Those discharged on account of disability existing at the time of their enlistment

5 The heirs of those who have died since their discharge of wounds or disease not contracted in the service and in the line of duty

7 The surviving soldiers, as well as the heirs of deceased soldiers, when such soldiers have bartered sold, assigned, loaned, transferred exchanged or given away their final discharge papers, or any interest in the bounty provided by this or any other Act of Congress.

8 The Act of the 28th of July 1866, creates no right of inheritance beyond those vested by the law under which these heirs received or were entitled to receive the original bounty and debars certain classes brothers and sisters of heirs that were entitled to receive the original bounty, from any claim for the additional bounty provided by this Act

making less than two-fifths of the real amount said Mayer was to pay He had secured the building at very advantageous rates, and even were he now to comply with his contract and pay in coin he would be getting the best bargain in the city I take this statement to show the public what kind of a man he must be to take such undue advantages of the times to enrich himself by LEGAL SWINDLING The public can readily see how much it costs to have such tenants in such costly buildings as the one referred to above

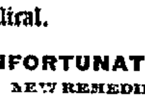
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,



617 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self abuse This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs confused vision, blunted intellect loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society loss of memory, hectic flushes pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, feted breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats monomania and frequent insanity If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr G will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure or make no charge

J. L. DOWNING.

Montgomery, Ala., June 17, 1859

"I take pleasure in recommending the Mexican Mustang Liniment as a valuable and indispensable article for Sprains, Sores, Scratches or Galls on Horses. Our men have used it for Burns, Bruises, Sores, Rheumatism, &c, and all say it acts like magic. J W Hewitt, Foreman American, Wells, Fargo's and Harnden's Ex.

"The sprain of my daughter's ankle, occasioned while skating last winter, was entirely cured in one week after she commenced using your celebrated Mustang Liniment.
Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 1, 1865. ED. SEELYE.

It is an admitted fact that the Mexican Mustang Liniment performs more cures in shorter time, on man and beast, than any article ever discovered. Families, livery men and planters should always have it on hand. Quick and sure it certainly is All genuine is wrapped in steel plate engravings, bearing U. S.
